

Dear ,

Some stories write themselves— while you're trying not to fall off a tractor.

A different kind of perspective

Earlier this month, I was out mowing the vineyard. And while that may sound poetic, let me assure you—it isn't.

Driving on a slope, dodging potholes, swatting at bugs, all while getting whipped in the face by tall grass... it's less "Italian dream" and more "nightmare on bug street".

But these are the kinds of chores that give my brain space to wander. And somewhere between silently screaming at spiders and looking out over the horses in the pasture, I started thinking about control. Or rather, the lack of it.

What that has to do with your photo session

Just bear with me 😊

Photographing horses is similar, in a way. I never really know what I'm walking into. The location? New to me every time. Google Maps and sun tracker apps can only show you so much. The horse? Again, always new to me. I don't know their habits, their quirks. Their do's and don't's. And the human? Always a little nervous. Which the horse definitely picks up on.

So no, I am not in control of many aspects of your photo session.

Instead, I pay attention. I stay present. I adapt to the moment—even when it doesn't go to plan.

But that's exactly what I love about it.

No two sessions are ever the same. Each one is shaped by the horse, the person, the weather, the light, the location, ... And that's what makes it feel so real and unique each and every time.

If you're wondering what your own session might be like...

I have two equine photography packages available, both designed to give you space to just be with your horse while I document what makes your connection so uniquely yours.

— The Essential includes a 1-hour session, 30 images, and a handmade album with a soft, minimal look.

— The Beyond is a longer session (2.5 hours), includes all edited images, and a luxurious, customizable album with 40 images.

In both, you'll get my guidance in every possible aspect, as well as a personal viewing session when your photos are ready. Everything is designed to make this a relaxed experience for you.

What caught my eye on social media this month.

I mean, it doesn't always have to be so serious 🤪

As always, thank you for being a part of my journey.

Hold onto those small, everyday moments with your horse—they're the ones that matter most.
